Patricia Moser is a film and television actor, and comedian. Her recent screen work includes An Anatomy of Grief , an award-winning short film, as well as Long Term Care and the upcoming short Spirits.

Before transitioning fully into acting, Patricia spent many years in senior executive leadership roles internationally, including a diplomatic posting at the United Nations. That background informs her grounded, disciplined screen presence and her ability to inhabit roles requiring gravitas, nuance, and lived-in realism.

Based in Toronto Patricia continues to build her screen career in film and television, and comedy.
