Some might call it a plot twist: after years in executive leadership roles worldwide—including a diplomatic post at the United Nations—I’ve fully stepped into the world of acting. But truthfully? I’ve been performing all along. Whether presenting to world leaders or navigating complex negotiations, success often depended on the same skills. Now, I’m channeling decades of rich life experience and extensive training into my work as an actor. And the best part? I’ve gathered a lifetime of material!
